Pittsfield, January 21.

The second of the series of lectures on "Palestine and the Holy Land," by the Rev. Dr. S. J. M. E. Franklin, of Pittsfield, was delivered before the Y. M. C.

A. of this place last evening. The G. T.

Hall was filled to its utmost seating capacity, by the most respectable and appreciative audience we have ever seen in Pittsfield.

The subject, notwithstanding its antiquity, seemed, under the earnest and eloquent treatment of the speaker, re-invested with all its normal attractions and interest, and throughout the entire delivery commanded the most gratifying feature of the oratory was the entire absence of the slightest degree of diphany, or attempt at merely rhetorical flights or figures. On the contrary, the lecturer spoke and acted as if in the presence of the interest of his hearers, and his manner was so simple and so personally depicted. The speaker said:

"Jerusalem is remarkable in many ways.

She is a mountain city. From every side you must ascend to her. She is a city of breath, she breathes a mountain air. In her city she maintained a mountain throne and bore on high the mountain sanctuary of Jehovah. The temple, occupying a lofty summit, was distinguished for vastness, grace and majesty. Like St. Peter's, she stood on a hill, and her architecture, in its grandeur, gave character to the surrounding scenery, over which it spread the wings of Divine protection.

Next to this elevated Mountain of the Lord, is its manifest antiquity; many an ancient monument, and many a relic of the past, though Jerusalem has been seventeen times destroyed, its battlements walls show many ancient carvings. The blocks of the Temple enclosure, at the depth of eighty feet below the street, below the level of the city, are the ruins of the Temple of Solomon. The ruins of the Temple of Jehovah, the Temple of the Holy Spirit, the Two men in Cleveland were recently thrown from their seats by the overturning of the wagon. One had his ankle dislocated and the other had his ankle badly broken.

Solon, the place so recently agitated by a frightful murder, has now a sensational accident. On Sunday last Harry D. Richards, a young man employed in Cowan's saw mill, was thrown upon the carriage and carried upon the large circular saw, completely severing an arm and a leg, presented a most shocking spectacle, the flesh and limbs being thrown to different parts of the room, the fact striking a companion ten feet away and a thumb lodging upon a girl of the mill frame. Dr. W. D. Stauder, from Chagrin Falls, dressed the limbs, after
